Have You "Botany" Flowers Lately?

By Lulu Fitzwater, G3 staff

Are you in need of new decorations? Or maybe a new gift for that special someone? Do you want to give a friend a gift to show your gratitude? Well, if so, then the Floriculture class has got your back! If you are in need of any flowers or just want a pretty bouquet, the Floriculture class constantly has new arrangements for sale! If you want something more specific or personalized, you could speak to Mrs. Zimmerman or any student in the Floriculture class to give some ideas for flower arrangements you would like to buy. The floriculture students are always looking for some new ideas and would be delighted to take them! Don't be shy! If you'd like some flowers, but don't have a romantic partner to give them to, it's no big deal. Different flowers have different meanings, so when buying your flowers, you can ask what flowers are in the arrangement. Then, you can look up what they mean! For example, yellow roses symbolize friendship, red roses symbolize a deep romantic connection, and Geraniums symbolize stupidity. They don't always mean love!

Occasionally, the floriculture class does things other than just floral arrangements, so make sure you don't miss those! For example, during Halloween the class sold different candy arrangements with a variety of different delicious candies in them! All arrangements are first come first serve, so make sure you don't miss out.

What's Goin' On Around Here?

By June Callister, G3 Staff

Since the last issue of the Green and Gold Gazette, there has been a food truck frenzy, a police force test, red ribbon week, the Sadie Hawkins dance, and a Halloween concert. Mrs. Gonzalez's first period tech class welcomed students and staff to vote on each of the class members' food trucks. They had a menu, a website (also including a menu), and a 3d printed version of their food truck. The winners were: 1st , Annie Tibbits, 2nd , Jayde Rosener, and 3rd , Legend Hicks/Samuel Villalobos. Red Ribbon Week started off with an assembly where each class's team and a chosen adult (7th - Mr. Gibbs, 8th - Mrs. Sweet, 9th -NDI, 10th -Mrs. Benson, 11th -Mr. Minoletti, 12th -Tyler Thomas). There was a pushup contest, a sit-up contest, and a relay run around the track. The winners were, for highschool, Austin Zimmerman, and for junior high, Anna McKay and Keleilee Perkins.

The Tuesday of red ribbon week was Career Day, where students dressed as what they wanted their future career to be. Wednesday was hero day; students were encouraged to dress up as their personal hero. And Thursday was red day, though not everyone wore red. The Sadie Hawkins dance, where the girls ask the boys, was mostly filled with 7th and 12th graders, but there was a decent turn out of every age. Mr. Cuda's Halloween concert was quite the hit. It started off with Spooky Scary Skeletons, and the spooky songs played by the high school and junior high band were well played and very well planned. Some songs were even composed by band members Nicholas Blanco and Jaren Bloodworth. The November events to come are Veterans Day, Family Day (), and of course Thanksgiving.

Fall Sports Finish Strong

by Lulu Fitzwater, G3 staff

The football and Volleyball seasons have been going strong, but now the seasons are coming to a close with both regionals and state over.

The volleyball team made it to state! The first game was against Round Mountain, and Eureka won to move on to the second round. However, during the second game Eureka unfortunately lost. The football team made it clear until the regional finals, however, they lost to Alamo and were unable to go to state.

Both teams did amazing during their seasons and we congratulate them and all of their wins! I hope next year our teams continue to thrive and improve!

With the football and Volleyball seasons over, we are happily welcoming the winter sports teams and their players. Boys' basketball, girls' basketball, and wrestling are all starting, and the Green and Gold Gazette staff all wish them good luck and hope to see a good season from them!

Advice from Your Friendly Neighborhood Joe Vandal

by Joe Vandal, honorary G3 Staff,

Hey students of ECHS! This is Joe Vandal, here to give you advice! I offer advice to students who are having school and personal problems.

All submissions are anonymous and names may be changed to protect students' identities.

If you would like to submit an question, contact me by emailing JMartin@eureka.k12.nv.us.

*PLEASE! IF YOU ARE HAVING SERIOUS PROBLEMS, SPEAK WITH A TRUSTED ADULT!***

Dear Joe Vandal,
There's this girl I like, but she doesn't like me back.
What do I do?
Signed, fortnitekid101

Hello fortnitekid101!

One mistake you can make is personalizing the situation. She may feel bad for rejecting you or (potentially) hurting your feelings. While it takes time to heal, I suggest you focus on other things in your life! Enjoy reading, painting assignments, earning money, or anything you like! Remember, you are responsible for your own happiness!

Dear Joe Vandal,
Between everything going on in my life (work, school, activities, etc.), I'm struggling balancing sleep and studying. If I sleep and don't study, my grades suffer because I don't know what I'm talking about. But, if I study and don't sleep, my grades suffer because I'm so tired the next day I can't concentrate on what I'm trying to do. My life literally feels like it's crumbling.
From, Areyouseriousrightneow

Hey Areyouseriousrightneow!

Let me start by saying that your physical and mental health should be your number one priority! I recommend stopping some activities to reduce stress and make time for other activities.

Another tip is to listen to music while doing your homework! Trust me, it's less boring and really makes the time go by faster. I also recommend studying for 10-15 minutes each night rather than cramming the night before the exam!

Dear Joe Vandal,
What do I do about a friend who always wants to copy my homework?
Yours truly, Theflavorsaremeltingonmytongue

Hi Theflavorsaremeltingonmytongue, I suggest you talk to your friends about your feelings in a nice, calm way. Let them know it's not fair to you to do all the work, not to mention it is dishonest and you could both get in trouble if you were to get caught. You can offer to tutor them if you want, or encourage them to ask a teacher help. After all, it's not your job to teach students.

Dear Joe Vandal,
I have this boy in my class he is a great friend but I think he likes me. I don't like him like that though. I don't know how to tell him! Please help.
Sincerely, Slaygirlboss

Hey Slaygirlboss,

I get where you're coming from because believe it or not I can relate! Back in my day I was the school heartthrob. I would suggest being up front and asking him if it's true. If it is, he'll confirm it! Don't believe rumors because they are your worst enemies! If he says yes, then politely explain that you just want be friends.

Why Red Ribbon Week?

by Jazmine Martinez, G3 Staff

Red Ribbon Week first became a celebration when a man named Enrique (Kiki) Camarena joined the Drug Enforcement Administration in June, 1974, after being in the Marine Corps, being a fireman, a police officer, and an Imperial County Deputy Sheriff. He worked in his hometown Calexico, California, for three years; four years later, he got reassigned to work in Mexico.

For four years, Kiki was tracking down Mexico's biggest marijuana and cocaine traffickers until he was kidnapped on February 7, 1985, by 5 armed men when he was going out to lunch with his wife. His body was not discovered until March 5th, 1985.

After his death, his high school friend, Henry Lozano, launched Camarena Clubs. Many of the club members, such as Calexico High School, would wear red ribbons to pledge to live drug-free lives in honor of all of Kiki Camarena's sacrifices he made.

In 1985, the club members presented the "Camarena Club Proclamation" to First Lady Nancy Reagan which then brought it national attention. The campaign was finally formalized in 1988 with the help of the President, at the time being Ronald Reagan, and Mrs. Reagan. Now, more than 80 million people celebrate Red Ribbon Week from October 23rd-31st to pledge to live a healthy, drug free life.

Students participate at the Red Ribbon Week assembly.

Favorite Foods at the Fall Feast

by Jenny Whimple, G3 Staff

What is your favorite food to have at Thanksgiving? The Green and Gold Gazette picked the most popular Thanksgiving foods and created a survey asking students what their favorite was. The options to pick from were turkey, deviled eggs, cranberry sauce, pies, stuffing, bread, salad, gravy, and ham.

The most liked food was pie with 37% of the overall vote; coming in at second place was bread with 20% of students favoring the carbs. Third place was awarded to deviled eggs with 10% of students choosing these delicious morsels.

The runner-ups were turkey and stuffing tying for fourth place.

Thank you so much to everyone who completed the survey, and to Amanda for sending it out to all the students.
